Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Tuesday 20 Apr 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Mostly cloudy with patchy rain Tuesday, but brightening in north.

Today:
Chilly start in southeast where some early brightness, otherwise cloudy with outbreaks of mainly light rain Becoming brighter across the northwest in the morning with a few showers, and brighter conditions slowly spreading to most parts by end of day.

Tonight:
Cloudy with patchy rain in southeast in evening, otherwise mainly dry with clear spells, but a few showers in north and windy over Shetland with some heavy, perhaps wintry showers.

Wednesday:
Frosty start, then dry and bright, with long sunny spells and light winds, but cloudier around the far north with a few showers. Quite pleasant in sunshine but rather cool.

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Mainly dry and bright with sunny spells, but rather cool with night frosts. A few showers in the far north, some wintry and possibly heavy over Shetland.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.